

Business Implementation Strategies

The Implementation Conundrum

You know that implementing best practices in managing projects from start to finish is the proven strategy for improving your bottom line. But monumental workloads and tight budgets can limit your ability to provide your staff the training they need. You understand the value of training, but your executive management needs more information before they buy in to the concept. Your business users need help accepting a new way of doing things. Your staff needs a larger knowledge base before they can effectively use new methodologies

A Smooth Transition

Capitol Strategies can help you smooth the transition to implementing project management methodologies in your workplace. Our Business Implementation Strategies Training Program provides the level of education your organization needs to fully understand and implement project management best practices.

The Business Implementation Strategies Training Program is made up of several modules that fully address the implementation life cycle. Each module has been carefully designed to deliver exactly the information needed while minimizing time away from the office.

Our trainers are PMP® certified, and they have extensive experience presenting project management concepts so that they are easy to understand and easy to apply to your business. The Business Implementation Strategies Training Program modules are tested for effectiveness and efficiency, and undergo continuous improvement to ensure they meet your objectives.

The modules can be customized for your specific needs, and you can choose the modules that best address where your organization is in the implementation life cycle.

The life cycle begins when you decide that project management best practices will solve your work demand problem. Your staff agrees that a more efficient way of doing things is needed, but you need to convince executive management of the value of the investment. You also need to show your business users how these new methodologies will give them the product they expect.

The BIS Training Program overview modules explain the fundamentals of project management best practices in real-world terms that everyone can relate to.

Soon, your organization is realizing the benefits of your new project management approach. Projects are successful. Business users are getting the products they want. And executives are seeing a positive impact on the bottom line. PMP certification gives your organization a final stamp of authority and legitimacy.

The BIS Training Program PMP Exam Prep module guides your staff through the certification process and prepares them for the Project Management Professional exam.

Next, your staff needs to develop the skills necessary to effectively implement project management methodologies for your organization.

The BIS Training Program skill building modules provide step-by-step approaches to project management methodologies for project managers and business analysts.

Implementing project management methodologies and best practices in your organization is one of the best business decisions you'll ever make. Let Capitol Strategies' Business Implementation Strategies Training Program guide you to success.
